No longer can children and teens retreat to the safety of their homes to escape or de-stress from neighborhood or school bullies. The internet/social media have become their playground and they're active 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Bullies now use the internet to reach their victims and to groom their cronies. With email, instant messaging, texting, blogging, video streaming, and photo-based social media sites, all kids become potential targets. Bullies gain courage and momentum hiding behind the screen; with anonymity they further unleash their aggression. This presentation will provide cyberbullying statistics, tactics, and its impact on children of all ages. The audience will gain an understanding of the long-lasting effects of cyberbullying on children's functioning in the home, socially, and in school. Strategies to combat cyberbullying from individual to small-group, to school-wide programs will be presented. Application: Elementary, Middle & High School Personnel.
